making your codes run more efficiently - the philosophy of optimization key points i a slow program which works is much more valuable than a fast program which doesn't work. i 80% of the execution time is spent in about 20% of the code (the pareto principle) i 4% of the lines account for 50% of the execution time (knuth, 1971) i it is almost impossible to optimize as you program i throughput is more important than code speed arm® cortex®-a55 software optimization guide -
